DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is located along the east side of White Hall Road about 1-1/4 mile south of Chewsville in Washington County, Maryland. It is situated on a level plot of ground and faces west or toward the road.

The structure is a two-story stone dwelling, three bays in length. Most of the building is covered with stucco and trimmed in black. The stone work which is visible is of uncoursed rubble fieldstone. A two-story frame section extends to the rear or east of the building.

Most windows contain six-over-six pane sashes which are framed within a simple architrave. First floor windows of the facade contain modern single-pane sashes.

The main entrance is located in the south bay of the front of the house. The entrance opening accommodates only the door and is finished with plainly paneled jambs.

Small brick chimneys are located inside each gable end. A modern cement block flue rises along the south gable end. The eaves are finished with simply boxing and the roof is covered with corrugated sheet metal.

The house stands on property containing 20 acres. It is not at the present time in danger of destruction.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The significance of this house is its architecture. It represents a type of vernacular building in stone frequently found in Washington County. The structure reflects a tradition in house construction where the builder was not governed by a style or formal design but rather by needs for a suitable shelter. The random placement of windows illustrates its informal design.

A local historian reports that a house shoe foundry was located in front of this house early in the 19th century.
